Captain Issac Bassett, Assistant Sergeant at-Arms of the Senate--who recently completed fifty years service in the Senate Chamber- got the first appontment in the following manner: His father had charge of the Senate Chamber when the son was a mere boy, and, often took his son with him to the Capitol. One morning Mr. can sort out enough "pi" to put it in a Webster called the young lad to him and asked him how he would like to be a page. He then sent for the Sergeant-at-Arms and said that he wanted the boy appointed. The Sergeant-at Arms replied that he would consult the other Senators and see if they would permit the appointment of another page, as at that time only one was allowed. He spoke to several Senators, and some of them thought that one was enough; but Mr. Webster insisted on having his "little boy," as he called him, made a pag . The Sergeani-at-Arms told him that he could stay that session. So on the 5th day of December, 1811, he was appoint-
